ABSTRACT:

Simulation-Based reliability Assessment (SBRA) method combined with FEM software can serve as a suitable tool for solving structural problems that involves multiple random variables. Lecture will focus on the introduction to SBRA principles with an example of its application on the chloride diffusion problem of the bridge deck using ANSYS program.