Hydrogen Day at Penn State

November 14, 2006

FCT recently attended Hydrogen Day 2006 held at the Nittany Lion Inn and the Penn State University Park Campus on November 14.

Attendees toured one of five research laboratories or the new hydrogen fueling station developed by Air Products, Penn State, and the U.S. Department of Energy. Many took rides in Nissan’s X-Trail FCV with an informative dash display of the vehicle's performance.

Fueled by the hydrogen filling station, this bus will soon be placed into public service on campus and in State College. Donated by General Motors, this hybrid electric EV1 is being converted to a fuel cell vehicle.
